Norwich Stationary Engineers Had Banquet With National and State Officers as Guests-Past National President Reynolds of Hoboken the Principal Speaker-Local Wants Next State Convention Here.

Norwich Stationary Engineers' asocciation, No. 6, observed its tenth anniversary with a social gathering in cythian hall Saturday evening and occupants of the man who thinks and who wants to improve his condition, and for such a sociation, No. 6, observed its tenth anniversary with a social gathering in Pythian hall Saturday evening and the large attendance included national and state officials and a delegation from the Westerly association. The session was a plasant one and there session was a plasant one and there was much of value as well as enter-tainment in the remarks of the speakers. The one who, without doubt, doubt, made the biggest hit of the evening was the humorist, Jack Armour of New York, whose funny stories, with the dialect in which they were tald when the audience in which they were told, kept his audience in an uproar and brought him hearty applause at the close. Burton Thomas, at the plane, and John and Frank Ulmer, violins, entertained with selections throughout the evening.

Mayor Murphy Extended Welcome. George P. Thomas, who presided, in-troduced as the first speaker Mayor T C. Murphy, who was welcomed with applause. Mayor Murphy extended a hearty greeting to the guests and urg-ed that the state and national associations of engineers would do well to hold their annual gatherings in Norwich, where they would always be wel comed gladly. He spoke of the ben efits which must arise from the or ganization of men whose work is such as that of the engineers. Such an as-sociation, said the mayor, advances the interests of the members by their con-tact with men who face the same problems, and in increasing the knowledge and efficiency of the members advances the interests of the employ-ion in Norwich, The stationary engineers' association, said Mr. Coe, is different from other organizations of workingmen, in that a person in order to become a member must first be an American citizen, and second must have sufficient knowledge to qualify as an engineer. Our members always tend to pull with and not against eac hother and our organization does not interfere be-tween employer and employe. We have no strikes, our purpose being to have our members avoid trouble. We have no paid leaders and our officers are all men who have to work for a living every day, as do the ordinary mem-bers. Our 341 minor associations are all working for the benefit and betterment of conditions, both for the members and for the engineers who are not members. Where the members take interest in their association and where the association does its work faithfully the community is without excep-tion bettered by it.

Our educational features are carried on along lines calculated to advance your knowledge and give you new ideas, making you a better engineer and thus benefiting your employer as

By a previous town meeting the committee was directed to try to buy one of three sites on land of Henry J. Thereupon the committee learned that a good proportion of the people of the district would be satisfied with an improve his condition, and for such a man there is no better fitted association in the world than this. This association has no place for the man who things he has nothing to learn. A great many of the best engineers of the world today are members of this association, attend meetings regularly and admit that they are all the time learning something new through the association. The interchange of ideas the combatting of new mechanacre or a half acre plot from the socalled H. H. Gallup farm now owned by Benjamin Lucas. But Mr. Lucas after consultation with members of the family answered the committee they were not willing to sell this and they would name no price. He offered an-othe raite above the power house near where there is a bungalow now. As the events have turned out, the committee now requires further direc-tions from a town meeting as they have furnished to many of these men the impelus to study which has placed them in their present high positions. Inspiring Revival Service

Before an audience of about thirty Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Buckingham Memorial, P. E Thompson, editor of People's Puipit, gave an instructive lecture on Bible study. Mr. Thompson spoke for over an hour, developing first many points to show how God's hand could be shown in the progress of the ages as referred to in the Bible. He then gave his hearers instruction as to the study of the word as relating to the future, giving them what he called a Scriptural yardstick in the verse: "My ways are not as your ways, nor my thoughts your thoughts; for as the heavens are high above the earth, so are my thoughts higher than your thoughts and my ways than your ways." It is only for applying this measure that the finite mind can grasp, the infinite meanings in the word of Ged. A very large congregation heard Captain E. W. Wilbur speak at the Norwich Town M. E. church Sunday evening. He took for his theme, Where art Thou? He retold the story of the creation and made practical applica-tion, as he went along to the lives of the men of the present generation. He concluded by telling of some of his personal experiences with temptation and how he overcome them. His talk and how he overcame them. His talk was very interesting and he kept the attention of all while he spoke. At the conclusion two of the congregation came ferward, seeking salvation and prayer.
